

Library Instruction Program

Information for Faculty

- Are your students' research skills up to standards?
- Would you like your students to learn how to locate and evaluate appropriate information resources for their projects?
- Are you concerned about students' indiscriminate use of the Internet?
- Do your students need to use specialized tools or materials in order to complete an assignment?

The Library can help!

Today's students enjoy unprecedented levels of access to information, but, quite understandably, many are overwhelmed by the number and variety of information resources available to them. TO this end, we provide formal and informal opportunities for students to develop their critical thinking skills, acquire expertise in using research tools, and gain proficiency in identifying, locating, and evaluating information.

Library Sessions

Schedule a library session, and I can meet with your class and help your students learn about the resources and strategies that are most appropriate for their assignments, research topics, or expertise. Each session is unique because it is individually designed to meet the needs of you and your students.

Possible topics include:

- Research methods (general, subject-specific, or discipline-specific)
- Locating, selecting, and evaluating Web resources
- Database training
- Identifying and using primary resources, archival materials, and other special materials

To schedule a session, or to learn more about what the library can do for your class, please contact Deb Syvertson.
